SUPPORT FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF AGRITOURISM AND FOOD TOURISM IN THE OUTAOUAIS

For several years now, Outaouais Tourism (OT) has been actively involved in developing agritourism and food tourism. To ensure a factual basis for these initiatives, OT invested in business intelligence in this activity sector. In December 2019, a survey was conducted by Léger to gauge, among other things, public enthusiasm in the Outaouais and Ottawa regions for local products. In 2020, we mandated the Société du réseau Économusée (SRÉ) to conduct a study and a consensus-building exercise to define our regional identity and inform the development of an action plan to promote and structure our food tourism offering. In 2022, we hired RCGT Consulting to distil a regional profile from the provincial study on the socioeconomic and tourism benefits of agritourism and food tourism.

Agritourism and food tourism invite residents and visitors to discover a region through its terroir, its agritourism or bio-food activities, and its culinary experiences. Those experiences range widely (tasting products, visiting a farm, participating in a workshop, etc.) and are offered by various agencies and organizations, including producers, artisan-processors, shops, festivals and restaurants. In all, this sector comprises more than 2,000 Outaouais businesses and organizations. Studies carried out over the last ten years clearly show that agritourism and food tourism, long seen as complementary to the tourism offering, are a major draw in themselves and a dynamic sector that generates tourist stays and significant economic spinoffs.

OBJECTIVES

1. Develop an attractive offer in the agritourism and food tourism sector.
2. Position the Outaouais as a prime destination for food tourism enthusiasts.
3. Promote tourism that benefits individuals and respects communities.

5. Contribute to the development and strengthening of local supply chains.
